Prof tests food for Mars mission

□ BGSU professor Dawn Hentges helps ensure food safety of astronauts going to the red planet.

By JENNIFER LULEY
The BG News

In preparation for NASA's first manned space mission to Mars, a BGSU food science professor has spent her past two summers in Texas working to ensure the safety of the astronauts on the journey. Dawn Hentges, a full-time assistant professor at BGSU, used her food science knowledge during two 10-week fellowships at Johnson Space Center in Texas to assist in preparing food for astronauts. "My project was to write three food safety plans for the astronauts," Hentges said. The first summer Hentges spent at Johnson Space Center, she worked mainly on the safety issues of consuming lettuce and wheat in space; this past summer, Hentges worked on the consumption of soybeans in space.

Because the journey to Mars takes about six months and the return trip takes about nine months, Hentges said she and her colleagues tackled the issue of food safety in space.

Working on the "preparation through processing" of food, Hentges said only about 10 percent of the astronauts' food supply will be from re-supply missions NASA sends. The remainder of the food the crew will be responsible for growing or otherwise producing while aboard the shuttle.

"Ideally, the process would be totally self-sufficient," Hentges said.

With the processing of food in space come many potential hazards, Hentges said. Because of that, each step involved in growing or producing food must be thoroughly examined for the possible physical and chemical dangers involved.

"For example, water is a scarcity in space," Hentges said, so processes that rely heavily on the use of water must be reconsidered. Hentges also said the possibility of molds and bacteria growing on the food supply must be considered in the process of growing food in space.

Hentges said while her 10 weeks each summer produced some valuable research,

Lecturer to give new view of historic revolt in movie 'Amistad'

□ "Amistad" will be shown today and the corresponding lecture is Friday.

By MELISSA NAYMIK
The BG News

Last year, the movie "Amistad," directed by Steven Spielberg hit the big screen all around the world. Today the movie will hit the University, and tomorrow a lecture will capture how history and Hollywood can go hand-in-hand in making a film.

Donald Nieman, chairman of the history department and co-chair of the Africana Studies Committee, along with the departments of ethnic studies and history, Phi Alpha Theta, the Africana Studies Committee and the History Honorary Society are presenting a public lecture titled, "History and Hollywood: 'Amistad' as History and Movie."

The lecture will be presented by Howard Jones, research professor and chair of the Department of History at the University of Alabama.

Last spring, after the movie was shown in theaters, the University began planning a lecture which would present a clearer understanding of the revolt.

"It is important as a film because it dramatized a very important event in American History that very few people are aware of," Nieman said.

Jones' lecture will focus on Spielberg making this film as a work of art and history. The audience will want to know how good this film is as art and how good it is at representing history Nieman explained.

The lecture will also help people understand the role of film in shaping our way of looking at the past and present because both go hand-in-hand Nieman said.

According to Nieman, Spielberg had no intention of making "Amistad" a documentary. Spielberg believed it to be a work of art and entertainment. By him making this film, he felt it would help people understanding history in another way.

"Many people get knowledge of history from popular culture, such as movies and films," Nieman said.

Lillian Ashcraft-Eason, associate professor of history and co-chair of the Africana Studies Committee, hopes that by showing the movie and having a lecture, students will be inspired to

Weiss named governmental affairs director

□ Larry Weiss plans to spend part of his time in Columbus on behalf of BGSU.

The BG News

Larry Weiss, University director of alumni affairs for the past 21 years, has added another assignment to his work schedule - director of governmental affairs.

President Sidney Ribeau said Weiss' "vast network of contacts with alumni and others in state government make him particularly qualified to handle this important assignment. Strong University representation during this key legislative year is needed in Columbus and Larry has the necessary experience and knowledge."

With the state capital bill and the biennial budget on the legislative agenda this fiscal year, Weiss said he will be spending more than half of his time in Columbus lobbying on behalf of the University.

"What's going to make it interesting is the impact of the hearings now underway to determine whether the state has complied with the Ohio Supreme Court's order to remedy the way Ohio finances its public schools. The outcome of those hearings could have a huge impact upon higher education," Weiss noted.

Weiss will review all proposed legislation to determine its impact, if any, on higher education and the University. He will also consult with Ribeau and to determine strategies to support or modify such legislation.

"Lawmakers are looking to university representatives for input on their proposals," Weiss said.

A 1967 University graduate, Weiss became assistant director of alumni affairs in 1973 and was named director in 1978. In 1987, he took on further duties and added associate vice president for University advancement to his growing title.

An inside look

Are you SAFE

INVESTIGATING our dorms

Today marks the second day of a three part series investigating how safe the residence halls are at the University. Today's story continues with a look into the new policy installed for night entry into the halls. Friday's story will be a step-by-step view of how easy it can be to gain access into any residence hall.

By BRANDI BARHITE and MIKE WENDLING
The BG News

There has only been one alteration to the University's residence hall policies and procedures this year, but that change has caused widespread confusion, and students safety could be compromised.

In the past, residence halls required guests to sign in after midnight and call their hosts to bring them into their room. This year, guests no longer have to sign in, yet some nightguards are also under the impression the midnight check-in policy has been eliminated altogether. Some nightguards said residents do not have to show identification after midnight and guests do not have to call their hosts.

"I was told not to check anyone in," said Katie Woods, Darrow nightguard, junior journalism major.

A Prout Hall nightguard who wished to remain anonymous said the same thing. "We have a new policy. We don't check identifications."

According to Linda Newman, associate director for Educational Initiatives in the office of Resident Life, the policy has not been altered, except for one minor change.

Newman said the office of residence life decided to eliminate the policy of signing in guests because they wanted to create a more friendly and home-like atmosphere. She also said it protects the privacy of the residents.

"Are they really necessary? We want to make them [residence halls] more friendly," Newman said.

She said having guests sign in was not really an effective safety measure. She said there was never a check-out procedure and no one knew when the guests left the hall.

Newman stressed that nightguards still need to check the identifications of residents entering the residence hall after midnight and that guests still must call the person they wish to visit.

She also said students must be responsible for their guests and that guests must not wander the hallways alone. If guests are alone, they will be questioned and asked to produce identification.

"When we revamped, we placed less restrictions on the student," Newman said.

U.S. concerned with self-interests

As I write this, Iranian troops are amassing on the Afghanistan border. The Iranians claim that Afghan rulers killed nine Iranian diplomats.

I'm usually against any sort of armed conflict, but if I had to choose one regime in the world to go down in a hail of bullets, it most likely would be the Taliban, Afghanistan's ruling group.

The Taliban has been notorious for its reactionary interpretations of Islamic law. The severe edicts have been further exacerbated by the Taliban's tenuous grip on power. After the Soviet Union pulled out of Afghanistan, various groups fought for control of the country. In 1996, the Taliban group took the capital, Kabul, and now control most of Afghanistan.

Although all Afghans in Taliban-controlled territory have been forced to follow the Taliban's laws, the regime has come down particularly hard on women.

Women must be covered in public at all times, and have been systematically purged from all positions of influence or power.

The ruling faction has imposed a fixed, draconian system of gender relations that would shock even the most right-wing anti-feminist.

According to Harper's Magazine, the Taliban has closed down every all girls' school facility in the areas they control (about one-third of Afghanistan, mostly in the north, is still under the control of other factions). Afghan girls are facing a future with no opportunity, where the only course is to be married off and live subservient to her husband, as well as to the Taliban soldiers themselves (who frequently take liberties with women who run afoul of their laws).

With no rule of law, court system, legislature or judiciary, the Taliban fighters are free to do what ever they like. And that "whatever" has meant summary trials and executions, rapes, the elimination of any sort of right to speech—in short, anything to extend the Taliban's rule of terror.

It's funny but probably not too surprising that the United States has been rather disinterested in Afghanistan after the Soviet military operations ceased in that country. Once again, the government has proved that its role as world policeman doesn't have anything to human rights.

The remoteness of the Afghanistan, both in geography and political system, probably has something to do with America's disinterest.

As for ethnic differences, the American public has trouble differentiating between the Swiss and the French—much less Shiite and Sunni Muslims.

Regardless, Afghanistan does stand out on the Islamic landscape, if only because the Taliban regime makes any other vilified religious country look like Disneyland.

Our leaders will continue to do the wrong thing, and stay away from foreign affairs unless there's some sort of national interest involved, no matter how twisted or base.

We often hear the argument that goes something like this: "Why should we send our troops over to die in some foreign country that's not really important." I even sympathize with this point of view—who wouldn't, after the horror of Vietnam?

However, there are other, much more subtle ways of influencing a country or even toppling its government, ways that don't require bloodshed.

Perhaps we're just not aware of covert government activities against Afghanistan and places like it. I highly doubt that, though.

When I read about foreign atrocities I sometimes think back to the opening scenes of "Air Force One," when Harrison Ford, as President, announced that the United States would pursue a foreign policy based on human rights. My brother, sitting next to me in the theater, was probably befuddled when I laughed out loud.

U.S. foreign policy isn't, never has been, and probably never will be based on humans. When it comes to intervention, we're in it for ourselves, whether for economic or political reasons.

LETTERS

Dear Editor,

We are on the verge of impeaching a president for perjury with regards to non-criminal acts with an immaterial witness in a civil case that, according to the rule of law, did not have enough merit to go to trial. Never mind that no prosecutor would bother even investigating such a heinous crime were it committed by anyone other than the president. The argument is that he is the president, perjury is a felony and if he committed this felony he subverted the law and therefore should be expelled from office.

However, the people who cry that he has subverted the rule of law don't want to be annoyed with the law deciding whether or not the president committed the crime. They say things like, "Don't try our patience with legal hairsplitting."

Legal hairsplitting?! Did he break the law or not? In order to decide, don't we have to look at what the law says with regards to this matter? Which is subverting the rule of law, saying, "I'm going to let my lawyers argue the rule of law." Or saying "No, Mr. President, in this country you don't have the right to a legal defense when accused of a crime. We don't care what the law says about this crime. We say you're guilty, so plead guilty so it will be easier for us to run you out of office."

People of Orrin Hatch's ilk are going to tell you that they are going too fair-minded when they decide whether the president should be impeached. Maybe they think we the people are too stupid to realize it is no fair to be denied a legal defense when accused of a crime. If we are, then we get what we deserve.

Canada is sounding less cold every day.

Dear Editor,

There are several issues on campus that bother students such as parking, expenses, housing, etc. Here is some helpful information I discovered this fall. My parents found out I was tapped out on cash so they elected to buy me some books. When I talked to my mother, she concluded that the prices were ridiculous. My mother pulled up a search for books on the Internet.

Bingo! Two examples: Meyer and Barber's book for CS 100, Computers in your Future 2nd Edition (you know bookstores and publishers love new editions for new dollars signs.) At SBX, $36 used; $50 new. My mom just ordered me a copy for $19.95.

Also, Sociology: A Down to Earth Approach, Henslin, University bookstore and SBX: $62.50. At Barnes and Noble.com you can order it for $56.00. Maybe that itself is not such a great deal but, if you belong to their book club, you will receive a 10% discount. Ten dollars for every one hundred we spend, and I know lots of students who spend up to 300 dollars. My advice is to be smarter than the average BG bear. Find your books without spending a ton of money. My mom found my computer book at amazon.com and if you do a search you should be able to find at least ten more. Good luck shopping for your books for next semester.

Today's Birthday (Sept. 17). Your destiny is knocking this year. Don't be afraid to answer the door. Your biggest worries are the key to your greatest success, so face them. You're really smart in September, but love is what brings success. Don't complicate your life in December. It's busy enough already. Let your loved ones support you in January, and relax. In February, your co-workers will bring you what you need, if you ask for it. In March, a partner gives you a valuable gift; and in May, the treasure comes from long ago and far away. By August you should have things pretty well wrapped up. Make that your priority.

To get the advantage, check the day's rating: 10 is the easiest day, 0 the most challenging.

Aries (March 21-April 19). Today is a 7. You could say something to a loved one this morning that you didn't expect, but sincerely feel. You're generally outspoken, but when it comes to emotional stuff, you can get tongue-tied. But this morning you might blurt out something about love, or forever, or commitment. Not to worry. It's a good day for it.

Taurus (April 20-May 20). Today is a 6. Completion is the theme again. Action is required, and you'll have to make several big decisions. Heed a roommate's advice; but you'll have to live with your decision for a long time, so make sure it's one that supports you. If it does, it will likely also support the people you love most. That's just the kind of person you are.

Gemini (May 21-June 21). Today is a 7. There's something you'd like to change about your domestic environment. It doesn't matter if you've never done it before. You can learn. Other people do it, and you're certainly as smart as they are -- smarter than some. All in all, definitely capable. Go for it.

Cancer (June 22-July 22). Today is a 6. The sun is in Virgo and the moon is in Leo. Finish up old business today. Don't start anything new. Gather in money that's been promised, rather than getting new promises. New promises won't be worth much today, so there's no point in trying to gather them up. Go for the gold instead.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22). Today is an 8. Your motivation has to be to take care of other people or you won't succeed. If you can pull this off, you can acquire great fame and fortune. Today, don't start any new projects. Finish up something you've been working on. That means put in the corrections. If other people notice something wrong, listen and heed their advice.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Today is a 6. Today's agenda involves finishing old business. That's been a theme for the last few days, but now there's no turning back. The urgency of the situation will be apparent early in the morning. You might not even have time to make lists. You're going to have to rely on your memory and, in some cases, your imagination. No problem, right?

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Today is a 7. The moon is in Leo again, but it's void of course. That means it's made all the aspects it's going to make before it goes into Virgo tomorrow. The void moon of course means that whatever is going to happen has already happened, and now all we need to do is clean up. Not a bad idea, all things considered.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Today is a 6. The moon's in Leo, conjunct Mars in Leo first thing this morning, so the Leo people in your life might be feeling a little feisty. Mars would get them to do things they've been thinking about, but resisting, or afraid to try. So if you want to get an older person into action, give a little shove today. It could work.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Today is a 6. Your burning curiosity could lead you to try something you've never considered before. Since that's a rarity, you should be in for an interesting day. You'll do well to go back to a previous location, school or endeavor, but don't worry. It'll be different now, and what you'll be learning is all new.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Today is a 6. Money is again the focus today. If you can pay your bills early, you'll be ahead, even if you haven't received your paycheck yet. This coming weekend, by the way, is going to be excellent for travel. So get chores done early. You'll want to have the time for other things.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Today is a 6. If you push a partner intellectually today, you can get what you want. You usually figure out what's going to happen, then let someone else carry out the plan. That's what's going on now, but you can't just sit back like a mouse in a corner and hope everything goes well. You're going to have to get involved.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20). Today is a 6. Everybody's racing around, trying to do more than can possibly be done in the allotted time. If you think of it as a game, it'll be a lot more fun. If you think of it as being serious and life-and-death and all that, you'll only get yourself stressed out and make the job even more difficult.

DIRECTOR NAMED

University names Gary Hess interim director

Dr. Gary Hess of the University history department has been named interim director of the Center for Governmental Research and Public Service at the University.

Hess has been at the University since 1964. He has been a distinguished research professor since 1988 and last year was given the Distinguished Faculty Service Award.

The author of six books, Hess has twice served as Fulbright Lecturer and in 1978-79 was awarded a Research Fellowship by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Earlier this year the center received an $81,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Commerce to provide economic development assistance to local governments, nonprofit agencies and business.

A national search to fill the position on a permanent basis will begin this fall with the expectation of naming an individual to fill the position for the 1999-2000 academic year.

CLINTON TESTIMONY

Congress moves toward releasing video

WASHINGTON (AP) — The visual impact could be powerful.

Americans already know the gist of President Clinton's grand jury testimony. But it would be something else entirely for the nation to watch the president on television parrying prosecutors' questions, perhaps losing his temper, retreating into legalisms under close questioning about the Monica Lewinsky affair.

"If you read it, it seems abstract; if you see and hear it, it seems real," said Robert Lichter, president of the nonpartisan Center for Media and Public Affairs.

"TV has a unique political impact," he said. "That's why presidents go on television; they don't issue press releases when they want to mobilize public opinion."

Republicans in Congress were moving toward releasing the four-hour tape of Clinton's Aug. 17 testimony, arguing that it would help people determine whether the president lied under oath. Democrats worried the tape would be used for political purposes.

People were in no rush for a look. A CBS News poll released Wednesday said that 70 percent of Americans thought it was not necessary for Congress to publicly release the tape.

IN A HURRY

Mom arrested after driving on sidewalk

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A woman in a hurry to get her children to school drove up onto the sidewalk and across people's yards to get around a traffic jam, dragging an officer who got her hand tangled in the seat belt, police said.

The woman was stopped in traffic backed up by an accident when she drove off the road Tuesday with two girls, 10 and 13, in the car. Cpl. Lori Fansler, who was directing traffic, said she ordered the driver to stop and leaned into the car to talk to the woman, who told the officer she "didn't have freaking time for this" and hit the gas. Fansler was dragged about 10 feet.

Another officer chased the car down a road at about 75 mph before the woman pulled up at an elementary school.

Sarah C. Carr was charged with assault with a deadly weapon on a law officer, speeding to elude an officer and careless and reckless driving. She had to post $1,000 bail to get out of jail.

AUTOMOBILE RECALL

Honda recalls 968,000 Accords

DETROIT (AP) — American Honda Motor Co. is recalling about 968,000 model year 1995-97 Accord cars to check for a wiring problem that potentially could cause a fire under the hood.

The air conditioner wiring harness may have been improperly installed, allowing some wires to rub against each other and eventually wear through their insulation, causing a short circuit, Honda said in a statement Wednesday.

In most cases, the short circuit would blow a fuse or cause the battery or air conditioner to fail. But in some cases, the wiring could overheat and cause a fire, the statement said.

There have been no accidents or injuries reported as a result of the problem, it said.

The recall involves four-cylinder Accord sedans, coupes and station wagons in LX, EX and SE versions. Accord V6 and DX models are not affected.

Honda's only American auto assembly plant is in Marysville, Ohio.

Owners will be notified by letter in early October and repairs, if needed, will be performed without charge at Honda dealers.

PRISON POISONING

Inmates ill from carbon monoxide

WRIGHTSVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Inmates fell ill with symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning this morning when a water heater apparently malfunctioned at a minimum-security prison.

The prisoners complained of faintness and trouble breathing, said Dina Tyler, spokeswoman for the Arkansas Department of Correction.

Eleven prisoners were sent to Little Rock hospitals and the prison system diagnostic hospital in Pine Bluff, Tyler said. The rest of the 96 inmates whose barracks are served by the boiler were moved to a gym.

While the Wrightsville minimum-security unit has some of the prison system's older buildings, the boiler in question is less than 8 years old, Tyler said.

Officials struggle to bring victims aid

□ Southern Chiapas isolated by mudslides, swollen rivers and downed bridges.

The Associated Press

TAPACHULA, Mexico — More rain delayed aid flights Wednesday to villages isolated by a week of flooding in Mexico, while the death toll rose to 119 and hunger grew among those cut off by the downpours.

Helicopters resumed shuttling food, water and medicine to the 400,000 people in southern Chiapas state isolated by mudslides, swollen rivers and downed bridges when the rain let up in the late morning.

Forecasters predicted more heavy rain in the next 24 hours.

The floods last week tore through an area the size of Massachusetts, leaving residents without food, water or power. By Wednesday, 119 bodies had been recovered, according to Health Minister Juan Ramon de la Fuente, although officials expect the number to rise.

Local newspapers said more than 200 had died, and the Roman Catholic bishop of Tapachula, Monsignor Felipe Arizmendi, said the church expected the death toll to reach 500 or even 1,000 when officials are able to count all the missing from tiny villages in the mountains.

Many bodies are believed to have washed into the Pacific or disappeared beneath the mud.

Hunger was increasing among flood victims, and in one village people attacked a military helicopter dropping off aid, according to the Mexico City newspaper Reforma.

Dozens of villagers in Soconusco, 40 miles northwest of Tapachula, swarmed onto a helicopter dropping off rations Tuesday, grabbing everything inside the chopper. Soldiers were unable to stop them, Reforma said.

"People are starving to death here," a local leader, Leobardo Broca, was quoted as telling the soldiers. "See for yourselves. I want all of you to understand that I'm not guilty of anything, because you've left us alone."

The fight for the aid was intense, the newspaper said. Two women fought over the same sack of flour, splitting it in half and sending a cloud of flour over the area, churned up by the helicopter's rotors.

Weather officials said 3.2 inches of rain had fallen in Pijijiapan, one of the hardest-hit communities, and half an inch in Tapachula. They forecast another 2-2 1/2 inches in the state over the next 24 hours.

In Washington, the U.S. State Department advised Americans to exercise caution when traveling in Mexico because the floods have washed out roads and bridges, blocking passage on some, including sections of the Pan American Highway.

State government officials said helicopters had been grounded Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday morning because of rain, but the rain turned into a drizzle and the aid teams resumed their work.

Disney convention draws the obsessed □ Disney memorabilia sold for enormous prices at the Official Disneyana Convention held last week.

The Associated Press

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. — Frank and Marilyn Pancotto's kitchen in North Carolina is decorated with a Mickey and Minnie motif. The dining room is resplendent in Beauty and the Beast decor and the living room has a decidedly Snow White and Fantasia flair.

Robert Sher doesn't have enough room for all his Disney memorabilia in his New York City apartment, so he keeps much in storage. Dan Casteel has thousands of Disney figurines and 190 animation cells in his Clifton, N.J. home.

If there were a support group for these people, it would be called Disneyholics Anonymous. Instead, these Disney collectors find their support, and hundreds more items to buy, each year at the Official Disneyana Convention.

This year's convention, held at Walt Disney World, wrapped up Friday.

"It's something inside you that as a kid was never satisfied. This helps you feel like a kid again," said Dr. David Burnside of Columbus, Ohio. He and his wife, Mary Lou, spent $6,000 on Disney collectibles and merchandise at the seventh annual convention.

Attendees, known as "ConventionEars," paid at least $1,185 for a week of seminars, theme park visits, speeches, auctions of Disney memorabilia and spending sprees on Disney merchandise. There were special appearances by the actors who gave voice to Mickey and Minnie, Disney animators and Diane Disney Miller, Walt's oldest daughter.

At this year's auction held Wednesday night, a businessman from New Canaan, Conn., paid $22,000 for a flying elephant car from the theme park Dumbo ride. A vehicle from the recently closed Mr. Toad's Wild Ride sold for $13,000.

"These are our most loyal fans," said Ed Storn, manager of events and specialty merchandise at Walt Disney World.

Attendees entered a lottery for the chance to buy, among other items, a porcelain figure of Pinocchio with Gepetto for $775 or a bronze figurine of Jiminy Cricket for $1,400.

The best deals, however, were theme park props Disney was selling in an area called "Mickey's attic."

Cold War bomb fallout study released □ Scientist apologizes for delay in releasing bomb fallout study. The study's release was delayed for 15 years.

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The scientist who oversaw a 14-year health study of radiation fallout from Cold War bomb tests apologized Wednesday for years of delay in making the findings public.

"The sense was that nobody was really terribly interested in this," Bruce Wachholz, chief of the radiation effects branch of the National Cancer Institute who coordinated the fallout study, told a Senate hearing.

To which Sen. Susan Collins, R-Maine, responded: "The public couldn't be interested in what the public didn't know."

The study, which tracked fallout nationwide from 100 above-ground nuclear explosions in the Nevada desert during the early years of the Cold War, was released last October, nearly 15 years after Congress ordered it.

Three months earlier, key findings were made public. The study concluded that exposure to iodine-131 from the bomb test fallout may have caused 11,300 to 212,000 additional cases of cancer.

Senate Governmental Affairs Committee members asked senior National Cancer Institute officials why the findings were not made public earlier, since the basic results were known as early as 1989 and a final draft report was completed in 1992. Some lawmakers have suggested the release was delayed out of concern about public reaction.

Wachholz said there was "no intention to deceive or conceal this information" but acknowledged the report "received little attention" for several years after it was largely completed as some of the same researchers focused on the 1986 Chernobyl nuclear accident.

"The report should have gotten out faster," said Wachholz.

But another witness suggested that public relations concerns may have played a part.

"There was concern within the (National Cancer Institute) about the negative impact that the study might have on public perception about the legacy of atmospheric testing of nuclear devices," said Owen Hoffman, who was a consultant on the fallout research.

"This concern may have been partially responsible for delay in publication of the results," said Hoffman, now president of SENES Oak Ridge Inc., a consulting firm on risk analysis.

Richard Klausner, who became NCI director in 1995, acknowledged that he became aware of the study because of an inquiry from Sen. Tom Daschle, D-S.D.

"Somewhere, obviously, this fell through the cracks," said Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio. "We shouldn't have to heckle people to get a report."

In releasing the report last year, the NCI concluded that bomb testing in Nevada between 1951 and 1962 exposed millions of American children to radioactive iodine-131, which can cause thyroid cancer.

The report estimated there would be 11,300 to 212,000 additional cases of thyroid cancer as a result of the exposure, particularly in the Farm Belt where children often drank fallout-contaminated milk.

The NCI last year urged those who believed they were exposed and are worried about it to see a doctor for a thyroid examination. Some scientists have suggested a more formal regional screening of exposed victims, but the NCI said that might cause more problems than it resolves.

Earlier this month, an Institute of Medicine committee also called regional screening unnecessary because it would provide no significant health benefits. The panel concluded "the number of excess cases of thyroid cancer is impossible to predict."

"A national or regional screening effort could result in needless worry and unnecessary surgeries because the tests used to detect the disease are so often inconclusive," said Robert Lawrence, a Johns Hopkins School of Public Health professor and the chairman of panel.

H.S. student attacks 2 at Oberlin

High school student charged with attacking two women at Oberlin College.

The Associated Press

OBERLIN — A high school student working part time at Oberlin College has been charged with attacking two women on campus.

Delucas Lucas, 19, was charged Tuesday with attempted murder, attempted rape and aggravated burglary in connection with an alleged attack on an 18-year-old woman from Los Angeles on Sept. 6.

Police said he broke into the freshman's dorm room and attacked her with a 5-pound attachment to an electric mixer. The woman, who suffered a fractured skull and arm injuries, was able to scare her attacker away.

Lucas also was charged with felonious assault in an alleged attack Feb. 8 on a student walking to her dormitory at the college 30 miles southwest of Cleveland.

Municipal Judge Martin Heberling set Lucas' bond at $500,000. A preliminary hearing was scheduled for Tuesday.

Police Chief Robert Jones said tips led authorities to arrest Lucas, who is an Oberlin High School student. He worked part time in the kitchen at the college's Stevenson Hall dormitory.

Jones said Lucas acknowledged that he attacked the women in an unsuccessful attempt to rob them.

Lucas' attorney, Kirk Perry, said he has known his client for several years through a youth program and was surprised by the arrest.

"He is a model citizen. He has never been arrested," he said. "Right now, he is not even sure why he was picked up."

Hyde admits to 1960s affair

□ Clinton Impeachment team member admits to "indiscretions."

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Rep. Henry Hyde, the House member leading the impeachment review of President Clinton, admitted Wednesday to "indiscretions" with a woman in the 1960s at a time both were married.

The Judiciary Committee chairman issued a statement responding to a story in Salon Magazine, which detailed an affair with a woman identified as Cherie Snodgrass. The Illinois Republican called the article "an obvious attempt to intimidate me" and vowed that it would not affect any impeachment proceeding.

In a memo this week to Judiciary Committee members, Hyde warned that "some supporters of the president, possibly including White House staff, may be attempting to collect and disseminate derogatory personal information about members of Congress, particularly those serving on the House Judiciary Committee."

The memo added that efforts to intimidate lawmakers or interfere with their official duties would violate U.S. criminal law.

White House press secretary Mike McCurry said the White House was not connected with the story in any way and has made it clear that anyone who peddled such information would be fired.

"People here are livid that it would even be suggested we were a source of the information and livid if anyone here attempted to be the source of that information. It is the last thing we need at this moment," he said.

Hyde's statement said, "The statute of limitations has long since passed on my youthful indiscretions. Suffice it to say, Cherie Snodgrass and I were good friends a long, long time ago. After Mr. Snodgrass confronted my wife, the friendship ended and my marriage remained intact."

Last week a conservative Republican, Rep. Helen Chenoweth of Idaho, admitted she was wrong to have a long-term affair with a married man more than a decade ago. Ms.

Chenoweth has sought Clinton's resignation since April because of the Monica Lewinsky scandal.

And earlier this month Rep. Dan Burton, R-Ind., who is conducting a campaign fund-raising investigation of Clinton, admitted that he fathered a child in an extramarital affair.

Hyde told a closed House Republican caucus Wednesday that lawmakers should be alert to investigations of their personal life, according to sources at the meeting who spoke only on condition of anonymity.

He contended that allies of the president have hired two law firms to investigate Republicans.

The Salon story said Hyde had a five-year sexual relationship with a woman named Cherie Snodgrass, and the magazine has a picture of a woman — identified as Ms. Snodgrass — sitting on Hyde's lap.

The affair was carried on from 1965 to 1969. Hyde was 41 when the affair began and Ms. Snodgrass was 12 years younger, the story said.

Salon quoted the woman's former husband, Fred Snodgrass, as saying the affair destroyed his marriage.

Jim Thome and Travis Fryman celebrate during Wednesday's game with the Twins. The Tribe won the game 6-1 and clinched the Central Division.

CLINCHED!

Indians claim fourth straight division title

□ The Tribe survives injuries, trade and season-long slumps to take another division crown.

The Associated Press

CLEVELAND — The Cleveland Indians are inspiring jokes of a different nature these days.

Some say the AL Central title isn't worth the paper it's printed on. Running away with the division? Hah! This year, the division ran away from the Indians.

Critics can scoff all they want. Despite injuries and season-long slumps, the Indians clinched their fourth straight Central title Wednesday night with an 8-6 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

And no matter how many times they do it or how docile the competition, it's still special to manager Mike Hargrove.

"In '92, if I had told everybody that starting in '95 we'd do what we've done, a lot of people would have laughed," Hargrove said. "And I wouldn't have blamed them."

The Indians, one of the worst teams in sports for nearly four decades, became only the third team to win four straight division titles since divisional play started in 1969. They joined Atlanta, on its current run of seven straight, and the Oakland A's, who won the AL West from 1971-75.

With their 84th victory, the Indians wrapped up the title a week earlier than last season — when they clinched with a dramatic, seven-run comeback for a 10-9 victory over the New York Yankees on Sept. 23.

Before the clinching game, Hargrove repeated a statement he made last fall before Game 6 of the World Series. With the Indians facing elimination, Hargrove said he "had a good feeling about this team." The Indians won the game — remember Chad Ogea's two hits off Kevin Brown? — but blew a one-run lead in the ninth inning of Game 7 and lost in 11 innings. Hargrove's gut feeling this year is "a lot like I had for last year's team."

They proved he might be onto something with three homers in the first inning. Manny Ramirez hit his 41st and 42nd homers, giving him five in two games.

As the defending AL champions know, even a post-season ticket punched in the easygoing Central can be good for a trip to the Series.

"The postseason is an entirely new deal," Hargrove said. "I think we proved that last year."

The Indians were 100-44 in the strike-shortened 1995, when they won their first AL pennant since 1941; won 99 games in 1996 but were bounced from the playoffs in the first round by Baltimore; and finished 86-75 last season.

This year, Kenny Lofton returned as a free agent. Sandy Alomar followed his dream season in '97 with an offensive flop that saw his average dip into the .230s.

Jose Mesa, who never recovered from his blown save in Game 7, was traded to San Francisco on July 23. The bullpen purge included trading Eric Plunk to Milwaukee for Doug Jones.

Jim Thome, who started his first All-Star game at first base, had his right hand broken by a pitch from Tampa Bay's Wilson Alvarez on Aug. 7. But he returned to the lineup Wednesday night just in time for the celebration — even homering in his first at-bat.

The clinching victory pushed Cleveland's record since the All-Star break to 33-31. Their drive to the division title was more like a leisurely stroll.

The Indians have won four straight since Vizquel's outburst. When he charged the mound, it was as if the Indians heard the final boarding call for flight 1998 to the postseason.

On Wednesday night, they climbed on.

Golf teams start off on different notes

□ Men and women begin season with contrasting results at invitationals.

The Bowling Green women's golf team took part in the Mary Fossum Invitational at Michigan State and came away with a disappointing finish. The Falcons finished 11th out of 13 teams with a score of 668 over 36 holes. They fell short of their team goal of shooting 320 over 18 holes. Michigan State won the tournament with a score of 595.

"It wasn't the best performance we've had," BG coach Kurt Thomas said. "We need to work on our short game in order to play better. We need to sink the putts we're supposed to sink."

Senior Heidi Hansen led the Falcons, finishing 35th with a score of 162.

This weekend, the Falcons will play in the Huskie Classic at Northern Illinois. The tournament presents a tough course and a field of over 20 teams.

"We're not really sure what to expect with this tournament," Thomas said. "We need to make good use of our practice time this week so we can go in and perform up to our standards."

The men's golf team made a good first impression as they began their season Monday at the Titan Invitational.

The Falcons took third out of 13 teams with an overall combined score of 592 for 36 holes. Only Eastern Michigan and Michigan State fared better.

Leading the way for Bowling Green was senior Otto Larson. Larson tied for eighth, shooting 146. Also swinging for the Falcons were seniors Jeff Hunt (150), Mike Kotsos (151), sophomore Justin Gillham (154) and freshman Andy Thiessen (153).

Thiessen provided the surprise of the day in his first college tournament.

"There is a big difference in high school and college level golf," BG coach Gary Winger said. "He is handling the transition well. He deserved the chance to compete and made the most of it."

Winger attributed much of his team's success to practice.

"We had to spend a lot of time on the practice greens because the fast greens of the course are the opposite of what we are used to at home," Winger said. "That played a big part in our performance."

The Falcons take this week off. Next week they go to Iowa City, Iowa to take part in the Iowa Hawkeyes Intercollegiate Tournament Sept. 25-27.

The Falcon volleyball team heads to Harrisonburg, Va. this weekend to take part in the Days Inn/James Madison University Volleyball Classic.

The brown and orange will do battle against the University of Maryland Baltimore-County, St. Johns and host James Madison.

"All four teams are pretty evenly matched," JMU coach Chris Beerman said. "It's going to be a very interesting and very competitive tournament."

On Friday BG plays the UMBC Retrievers. Last season the Retrievers went 21-9 and 10-2 in the Big South Conference.

BG is coming off an impressive win against Oakland Tuesday. Heather Murphy had a career high 22 kills in the game. In that game, the Falcons set seven goals and hit six of them.

was our passing score," Van De Walle said. "We'll try to get that in practice today."

The win has the team in good shape mentally for the weekend.

"After the Oakland win, we have our confidence back," BG's Kristin Gamby said. "We're going to be excited to play well again at a tournament."

Travelling has its good and bad, but the team is looking at the positive.

"It's real exciting," Gamby said. "There's a lot of team bonding. I think we all look forward to travelling."

BG coach Denise Van De Walle said it's good for the team because the team only focuses on volleyball.

In terms of the weekend, Van De Walle's crew is trying to fine-tune its blocking and defense.

"We'll be challenged by all three teams," Van De Walle said. "Every team has one or two go-to players."

This season, UMBC is off to a 5-3 start including an upset win over West Virginia. Senior Lisa Cline, Big South player of the year in 1997, should be a factor this weekend. Last season, Cline averaged just over five kills per game. She was among the nations' leaders in that category. Juniors Megan McNamara and LaNae Baker also made all-conference last season and should be players to watch.

The Falcon's second opponent will be the Red Storm of St. John's. They have a 4-4 mark this season. Last year, they went 11-5 and 3-8 in the Big East. St. John's finished next to last in the conference.

The Red Storm is coming off of a 2-1 showing at their own St. John's Classic. One player to keep an eye on for St. John's is freshman Stasha Levi. Levi earned Big East Rookie of the Week honors last week. She had 65 digs in four games. She also had 34 digs and 18 kills in a loss to Tulsa.

JMU is the only team of the three that BG has previously played. The Falcons lost to the Dukes at the William and Mary Tournament in 1996.

The Dukes, like the Falcons, have a young but experienced team. Mandy Carter is the only senior on the roster. She is a 6'1" lefty from Tennessee. The remainder of the team features three juniors, five sophomores and one freshman.

The Dukes feature the last two rookie of the year honorees in the Colonial Athletic Association.

Lindsay Collingwood won it in 1996. She is a two-time all conference player from San Diego, Calif. Karla Gessler received the honors in 1997.

JMU has started the season 3-3. They took third in the CAA last season, finishing with a 17-14 record overall and 8-4 in the conference. Look for JMU to run a fast paced, up tempo game.

MLB Ramirez ties record; 4 consecutive homers

CLEVELAND — Cleveland's Manny Ramirez tied a major league record with a homer in his fourth consecutive at-bat Wednesday night as the Indians scored five runs on three homers in the first inning against Minnesota.

Ramirez, who homered in his last three at-bats Tuesday night, hit his 41st homer on a 1-1 pitch from Bob Tewksbury. The three-run shot gave Ramirez five hits in his last 35 at-bats — all homers.

Jim Thome, in his first at-bat after missing six weeks with a broken right hand, followed Ramirez with a solo homer to left, his 30th and first since July 29.

After Travis Fryman grounded out, Richie Sexson hit his 11th homer on the first pitch to make it 5-0.

Ramirez is the first player to homer in four straight at-bats since Detroit's Bobby Higginson on June 30 and July 1, 1997. He is the third Indians player to do it, joining Rocky Colavito (one game) in 1959 and Willie Kirkland (two games) in 1961.

Ramirez's 41st homer traveled an estimated 433 feet into a stiff wind in center.

Three of the four homers exceeded 400 feet. He grounded weakly to second in the third, missing a chance to break the record.

Brewers shut out Reds

CINCINNATI — It took awhile for Bill Pulsipher to find his best stuff, but when he did he retired 10 straight batters.

"That's been the story of my life," said Pulsipher, who combined with four relievers on a five-hitter as the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Cincinnati Reds 2-0 on Wednesday.

"It seems like if I can get through the first couple innings without damage, things settle down," Pulsipher said. "Once I get into my stretch the first time, I get more comfortable."

Pulsipher (3-2) allowed five hits in six innings, struck out three and walked two. Chad Fox, Mike Myers, Eric Plunk and Bob Wickman finished Milwaukee's second shutout this season. Wickman earned his 25th save.

The Reds wasted their best scoring opportunity in the first when they loaded the bases before Paul Konerko grounded into an inning-ending double play. A double play in the second inning took Cincinnati out of a two-on, no-out situation.

"When I get guys on base, the only thing I'm thinking about is a ground ball," Pulsipher said. "The guys behind me have turned more double plays than any other team in baseball."

The Brewers have turned a major league-leading 185 double plays, including two Wednesday. Colorado has 180, and nobody in the American League is within 20 of Milwaukee.

"We had him in the first inning, but we couldn't cash in," said Reds manager Jack McKeon. "We couldn't get a handle on the guy. He just beat us."

Brett Tomko (12-12) allowed seven hits in seven-plus innings, with five strikeouts and two walks.

Falcon ruggers beat U of M Wolverines in weekend play

□ The BG rugby team continued its winning ways with a win against Michigan.

By JOE FINNELL

Special to the BG News

The Bowling Green rugby team extended its winning streak to 20 straight over Michigan with 75-10 and 22-5 victories over the weekend.

The Wolverines have not beaten the Falcons since 1971.

The 7-1 Falcons will host longtime Mid-American Conference rival Miami Saturday at 1 p.m. at College Park Field.

The two clubs split in the spring. BG took the MAC Championship match 40-5 before the RedHawks won 29-24 in the Ohio Classic Championship.

"We are slowly getting everyone to play as a team rather than as individuals," Falcon coach Roger Mazzarella said. "Having broken up a backfield that played together for three years, we were bound to have some problems meshing in the new faces."

BG vice captain Corey Ward also addressed the backfield.

"This was the best we've looked in three weeks and I expect a similar level of improvement next week," Ward said.

In the first game, BG pounced early and attacked the overwhelmed Wolverines from every point on the compass.

"BG had us back on our heels right from the opening kickoff," Michigan coach Rich Shurfeld said. "They are so good in the basic fundamentals that we were lucky to generate any kind of offense at all."

Falcon wing Brian Scerca opened the scoring 90 seconds into the game with a try and was followed across the goal line by wing

Theo Wirtz, prop Ben French, eight man Jeff McVey and center Mike Swanbeck. By the 10-minute mark, the Falcons built up a 25-0 lead.

Three more tries by Scerca, Wirtz and prop Tyler Carroll in addition to three conversion kicks by fly half Ward and a Wolverine penalty kick made the score 46-3 at half-time.

In the second half, the Falcon offense throttled back just a hair, taking on another 29 points to the final score. Wirtz, Ward, scrum half Steve Rittenhour, center Doug Ketterer and lock Dennis Antonelli all posted tries while Ward added three more conversions in the victory.

In the second match, center Scott Mullins, flanker Ron Humphrey and wings Kurt Weaver and Keith Bowers each scored solo tries and fly half Scott Havericak added a conversion as the Falcons coasted to victory.
